

Bibliography

I can make no claims to comprehensiveness for this bibliography. I have included works cited in the footnotes, other principle works consulted, and sources of more limited or specific relevance to which I believe it worth drawing attention. The subject matter of this study implicates vast primary and vaster secondary literatures, the life works of many theorists and scholars. I can hope only to have achieved respectful awareness of intersecting literatures that no one person could ever hope exhaustively to master.
